

Ready to save lives

NEW recruits are ready to patrol the Inverloch surf beach this summer.

Inverloch Surf Life Saving Club held a bronze medallion camp last week, to test potential life savers.

The medallion is a mandatory qualification for life savers on patrol.

More than 30 candidates spent a week at Waratah Beach learning life saving skills before undergoing examination on Saturday at Inverloch.

They were required to run 200m, swim 200m and run a further 200m within eight minutes to prove their fitness, as well as demonstrate knowledge of the surf, rescue techniques and first aid.

All set: life saving candidates compete in the fitness test.
